1969 Yenko Super Camaro

The Yenko Super Camaro was a modified Camaro that was developed by racer and dealership owner Don Yenko. When the original Camaro was first released, it was restricted from having an engine bigger than 400 in<sup>3</sup> (6.6 L) V8, which put it behind many of its competitors.

So, they constructed the Yenko Super Camaro and found ways around the GM engine limit. The 1969 model had L72 engines installed with buyers having the option of either the M-21 four speed or the Turbo Hydramatic 400 automatic transmission. 201 of the 1969 models were sold that year with the majority of them being four speed transmissions.
